What We'll Cover

- Meet the 5G Workforce
  - Characteristics, Trends, Preferences, Attitudes, & Influences
- Recognize and foster employee engagement
- *Gen*erate impact and employee retention
  - Communication
  - Climate
  - Career
85% of professionals interact with at least 3 other generations at work 52% of employees say they are least likely to get along with someone from another generation.

Why?
Generation Matters

- Our organization's greatest asset is our people
- Age diversity & shifting demographics
- Ability to pivot
- Innovation & creativity
- Employee growth & development
- Acceleration of technology & digitalization
Generational Diversity

- Representation of different generations in the workplace
- Slightly different from age diversity
- Fosters knowledge sharing
- Increased feeling of belonging
- Most effective when organization leaders make it part of their talent attraction & retention planning

Generate Curiosity...

to strengthen your teams

Ask team members questions to challenge assumptions, build on similarities, and view differences as strengths.
What is a generation?

A cohort of individuals who share:

- A chronological location in history
- Formative, shared experiences during that time in history

*Often determined based on the rise and fall of the birth rate

Examples:
Baby Boomers- Post WWII boom in population
Millennials v. Gen Z- Millennial, if you remember 9/11
A Few Notes About the Generations

- Study of the generations is a social science
- 2-to-3-year cusp between each generation
- Stage of life matters
Birthdate determines your generational cohort, not your personality.

#hashtag the generations

Reflect and Discuss With Your Table:

Select a generation you are most curious about.

Discuss what you know about your chosen generation.

Create a descriptive #hashtag for the generation.

The #hashtag should communicate the generation’s valuable and unique contributions to the workplace.

Time: 6 minutes
“I’ll have someone from my generation get in touch with someone from your generation.”
What is the biggest predictor of employee retention?

Employee Engagement!

• Engaged employees want to work with other engaged employees.

• Engaged employees want to come to work.
How do you know when your employees are engaged?

• They are bought into the mission
• They talk openly about the impact of the organization
• They seek new opportunities to contribute
What does disengagement look like?

- Tardiness & Absenteeism
- Reduced participation & communication
- Focus more on problems; less on solutions
- Less interest in work
Employee Engagement

32% Engaged

50% Neither engaged nor disengaged

18% Actively disengaged

How do we keep our teams engaged and retained?

By learning what matters most to our employees:
- Communication
- Climate
- Career
Communication

Each generation believes their preferred method of communication to be the most efficient.

How often do you communicate with media and methods that don’t appeal to you?

WHERE’S THE “LIKE” BUTTON?
Communication

Feedback is how employees of all generations learn, grow, and succeed.

Consider your ability to give and receive feedback. Is your approach to feedback helping you become a more effective leader?
Communication

• In-person
• Like to build rapport
• Presence is important
• Value politeness in communication

Not as responsive to...

• Verbal or non-verbal language that appears "disrespectful"
• Overlooking experience
• Not showing up
The Boomers
Feedback

Receive feedback
• Prefer feedback that is invitational, inclusive, and offers options.

Give feedback
• Emphasize personal connection, knowledge, and experience-based insights when giving feedback.
Gen X

Communication

- Be concise
- Be honest
- Prefer Email

Not as responsive to...

- Anything resembling micromanagement
- Not giving them options
- Conversations that don't get to the point
Gen X

Feedback

Receive feedback
• Prefers timely & candid feedback

Give feedback
• Emphasizes the results, not always the “how”
Communication

- Frequent feedback
- Informal
- "Text me"

Not as responsive to...

- Communication that feels too "formal"
- Topics that are "dated/irrelevant"
- Feeling like they are being "talked down to"
Millennials

Feedback

Receive feedback
• Prefer frequent feedback
• Want to be coached

Give feedback
• Achievement-focused, and growth- and development-orientated
Gen Z

Communication

- Technology as a "team member"
- Images - Reels, TikTok, gifs
- Prefer face-to-face feedback
- Keep it quick
- Constant feedback

Not as responsive to...
- Initiating the conversation
- Too much formality
- Unclear expectations
Gen Z

Feedback

Receive feedback
- Prefers instant, growth-oriented feedback; personalized and respectful to the individual
- Face-to-face

Give feedback
- Informal and real; often intertwines personal and professional priorities Imagine and Discuss With a Peer: It has just been announced that your organization is being honored at the “Outstanding Communicator Awards,” the awards show that honors great communication skills in the workplace. Your favorite celebrity is hosting.

When it comes time to hand out the awards:

• For which communication skill(s) will the Boomers and Gen Xers at your agency be recognized?
• For which communication skill(s) will the Millennials and Gen Zs at your agency be recognized?

Unfortunately, you can’t win ‘em all!

Offer one recommendation to increase successful communication and feedback across the generations.

Communicate Across Generations

Reflect: Does your communication style draw others in or push them away?

Apply:
• Build self-awareness.
• If you don’t know, Ask.
• Think inclusion. How can I strengthen my communication to benefit everyone?
Climate

Impact of the work environment or how it “feels” at work.

• 51% of workers are highly satisfied with their jobs*

• A person is 77% more likely to stay with their employer when they are satisfied with their organizational culture.

Climate

“70% of the variance in team engagement is determined solely by the manager.”

- Gallup

Identify the "Rescue Period"

"52% percent of voluntarily exiting employees say their manager or organization could have done something to prevent them from leaving their job." - Gallup

Climate

Wellbeing = the new requirement of the modern workplace.

- 52% of workers across generations want spaces to process mental health (e.g., mediation room)*
- 53% of workers want insurance for mental health services.*

Climate

Cultivate an environment where folks want to show up. Not where they have to.

What are you doing to contribute to a climate where people want to engage and participate?
Boomers
Climate

• Acknowledge and appreciate work ethic & contribution
• Invite thought leadership
• Leverage their knowledge
• Help them find flexibility
• Opportunity to make a final mark

Inspire with: “It’s the right thing to do.”
Gen X
Climate

• Focus on task
• Time is their currency
• Build mastery & versatility
• Challenge, stimulation, variety
• Respect preference for work-life balance; monitor burnout
• Get it done!

Inspire with: “This works, it gets results.”
Millennials Climate

- Flexibility
- In-the-moment feedback and coaching
- Role model leaders
- Opportunities for mentorship
- Leadership development
- Collaborate

Inspire with: “Let’s do this together.”
Gen Z
Climate

- Answer the question “why”
- Nurture personal relationships
- Encourage fresh perspective
- Inclusive organizational culture
- Growth and development opportunities
- Offer stress relievers

Inspire with: “We can fix this.”
Climate

- Gen Xers hold >50% of leadership roles*

- 62% of Millennials have direct reports, including Gen X & Boomers

Climate

Managing Older

Reflect: Individuals who manage employees older than them often struggle with confidence in their leadership.

Apply:
• Make connections first; set goals second
• Make space for two-way dialogue
• Don’t be afraid to be vulnerable
Managing Younger

Reflect: Many managers assume what works for them will work for their employees. How do you contribute to a positive and energizing work environment that is inclusive of emerging generations?

Apply:
• Let them know it’s ok to fail
• Clarify the impact
• Lead with honesty & authenticity
• Emphasize belonging
How’s Your Workplace Climate?

Connect with a Peer and Discuss:
You have been asked to speak to a multi-generational group of people who are eager to learn more about a career at your agency.

What key points would you communicate to your audience to demonstrate how the work environment (climate) meets the needs of each generation?

Time: 6 minutes
Experienced and emerging generations want meaningful careers. How they define career looks different.

In what ways are you partnering with employees to design and further their careers?
Career

Whether you are managing older v. younger, recognize how each of your employees define career:

• Unlock individual motivations. Discover how to make work meaningful and valuable to each person.
• Debunk stereotypes. Challenge assumptions and generate greater understanding of how each person views career success.
Boomers

Develop & Accelerate

- Passion, drive, vision
- Mentorship
- Individual recognition
- Legacy plan
- End-of-career stretch project
- Inspire innovation with vision
Boomers
Debunk Stereotypes

"Workaholics"
• Get-it-done-at-all costs
• Corporate ladder
• Eager to make a contribution

"Resistant to change"
• Created many workplace systems
• Trendsetting
• Team players

"Selfish"
• Ambitious
• Success is visible
• Competitive
Gen X
Develop & Accelerate

- Balance of internal & external development/coaching
- Hands-off management
- Opportunities to lean into entrepreneurial traits
- Share the goal; not the how
- Results-oriented projects
Gen X

Debunk Stereotypes

"Impatient"
- Prefer direct communication
- Time is currency
- Results-oriented

"Skeptical"
- Prefer transparency
- Get to the point
- Don't want to be "sold to"

"Too hands-off"
- Enjoy independent work
- Resourceful
- Believe in sharing the goal and not the "how"
Millennials

Develop & Accelerate

- Differentiate between management & coaching
- Frequent feedback
- Career advancement
- Collaborative spirit; partner with them on setting and achieving career goals
Millennials

Debunk Stereotypes

"Entitled"
- Optimistic
- Age does determine the contribution
- "We want to do more"

"Not loyal"
- Loyalty must be earned
- Want to be challenged
- Want to be included in the visioning and planning

"Stuck on social"
- Enjoy sharing success online
- High-tech & high-touch
- Tool to advance careers
Gen Z

Develop & Accelerate

- Driven and ambitious; map out career trajectory
- Careers are limitless
- Provide safety and security
- On-the-job skills & professional skills training
- Highlight opportunities for achievement
Gen Z
Debunk Stereotypes

"Stuck on their phones"
- Prefer communicating with images (e.g. photos & video)
- Teach Mom & Dad to download apps, use social media
- Can pay attention to more stimulation at once

"Not collaborative"
- Independent and entrepreneurial
- Want to be coached
- Determined to succeed

"Want to be catered to"
- View themselves as pragmatic and are concerned about their future
- Desire financial security
- Workplace culture matters
Reflect Independently:
Imagine a team member came to you and expressed frustration with their work, citing a lack of meaning in their everyday role.

What career coaching would you provide this team member to reconnect and engage themselves in their work?
Career

Reflect: Do you create opportunities for team members to develop and accelerate their careers?

Apply:
• Identify the critical knowledge & skills that each generation brings
• Discover what opportunities employees seek to advance their careers
• Make the time to coach employees, setting job-specific and career development goals
Generate Long-term Impact

- Identify and value generational similarities and differences
- Recognize your communication strengths and areas of growth, developing the skills necessary to communicate effectively across generations
- Understand how the work climate meets the needs of each generation and discuss where opportunities exist
- Meet team members where they are, asking each person what they need to be effective on the job
- Encourage mentorship and peer-to-peer learning opportunities to facilitate knowledge transfer
- Discover how each person likes to be recognized and rewarded
- Debunk generational myths and misconceptions
